May I reopen the question of finding a more reliable, if less conspicuous, place for my column than the Sunday Punch section? I believe I do have a sufficient following among your readers to justify a regular place; but I don't have to tell you that sporadic and unpredictable appearance is no way to build and maintain it.

The Washington Post has run every piece without exception now for a couple of years, and I do not think to their great disadvantage.

Anyhow, as you were kind enough to express your appreciation, I enclose some items that failed to appear in the Chronicle.

Sincerely,
